

Positive Behaviour Management

Monday 4th January 2016

A half day training session on positive behaviour management suitable for teaching staff and teaching assistants.

Sue Cowley is an experienced teacher, writer and presenter, whose specialism is in the area of behaviour management.

She is the bestselling author of twenty books for teachers and parents, including “Getting the Buggers to Behave”, “Teaching Skills for Dummies” and “How to Survive your First Year in Teaching”.

She uses a combination of training slides, practical demonstrations and group activities to help staff examine, develop and improve their behaviour management skills.

As well as being thought provoking, this training session is a great deal of fun, and should really reinvigorate and inspire staff.

The half day training session not only tells your staff about the best approaches, but shows them as well, as Sue aims to immerse you in a high quality training experience.
